In a recent statewide poll, Georgia credit unions found out that people are changing banks and spending habits because of hard times.

Betty Phillips has been a loyal customer at Mid South Federal Credit Union since the early 1960's. Phillips says, “My old saying is that you always pay yourself first. When you're writing your checks out to pay your bills, always think about yourself, always put a little in your savings.”

Claude Garrett, President of Mid South says he seen a lot of newer faces join the credit union, but the recent recession is putting a dent in the banking business as a whole.

Garrett also says because of the economy, 42% of Macon residents are spending less than a year ago.

But Betty Phillips says spending or not, she is determined to come out on top.
